The Grand Palace

One of Thailand's famous historical building complexes, located in downtown Bangkok. The palace features exquisite architecture that blends traditional Thai styles with Western architectural elements.

You can visit The Temple of the Emerald Buddha here to admire precious Buddhist artifacts and artworks. Not only a symbol of the Thai royal family, but also a microcosm of Thailand's history and culture. It's a must-visit destination for understanding Thai history and religious heritage.

 Ticket included – 15 USD

Wat Phra Chetuphon (Wat Pho)

Wat Pho, or the Temple of the Reclining Buddha, is a particularly ancient temple in Bangkok. The temple is located next to the south side of the Grand Palace. A stroll through the temple shows how each building is expertly crafted. The towering stupa, the red-roofed temple, and the temple with a red, green, and gold Thai-style curving roof are amazing. The temple is famous for two reasons. One is the large reclining Buddha on the altar in the temple. The iron-cast statue is 46 meters long and 15 meters high. The statue is gilded and adorned with gems, and almost occupies all of the space in the Great Hall. The other reason why the temple is famous is because you can enjoy an authentic traditional Thai massage here.

 Ticket included – 9 USD

Chao Phraya River Cruise (Including Buffet Dinner)

Chao Phraya River cruising offers the most immersive way to experience Bangkok's 'Venice of the East' charm. This vital Thai waterway connects the historical traces of dynasties with the vitality of a modern metropolis, allowing you to understand Bangkok's past and present through its shimmering waters.
